2022-2023 SEASON

THE GREENVILLE SYMPHONY

prides itself on offering free programs for all members of the community from our youngest listeners to our oldest.

"The language of music must be introduced to kids at an early age, in the same way as they study reading and writing; then they will be able to enjoy the incredible beauty and inspirational, healing power of music through their whole life. That's why the Greenville Symphony considers musical education as one of the most important parts of its mission."

— Edvard Tchivzhel
Music Director and Conductor

"An important part of our mission is to offer free or low-cost concerts for families in our community. We have free programs and concerts for every age level. Of note: we are excited to present a Lollipops concert that celebrates National Hispanic Heritage Month, and we've commissioned an original musical composition by Jon Grier. Don't miss our ASL friendly Lollipops concert on March 4th. Most education concerts are brought to you by the Greenville Symphony String and Woodwind Quintets."

— David Kiser
Education and Community Programs Manager
