

Greenville Symphony Student Ambassadors

Dress Code

Males:

Options: Black trousers (black jacket optional). Black socks and black shoes, black dress shirt or black polo shirt. Tie or bowtie optional but encouraged (can be any color, have fun!) No denim.

Females:

Options: Black dress, or black dress pants, or black skirt, black blouse, black shoes, or sandals. Have fun with accessories and jewelry! No denim, no leggings.

Social Media Policy

- Represent the Greenville Symphony in a respectful manner.
- Any posts that tag the Greenville Symphony or that are posted in the GSSA name should be free of: hate speech, politics, offensive language, and discrimination.
- Get permission to post images that include other people.
- What you post online is there forever.

Concert Etiquette

At classical music concerts, the cardinal principle is to let others listen to the music undisturbed. Instruments and voices are typically unamplified, and the music is rich in detail and includes passages played very softly. Many audience members want to hear everything, and the normal standard of courtesy is simply to be entirely silent while the music is playing. Thus, during this time experienced concertgoers avoid conversation, try to suppress coughs and sneezes until a loud passage arrives, and muffle these with handkerchiefs. Electronic devices are turned off. Concertgoers try to arrive and take seats before the music begins; late arrivals wait until a break between pieces allows seating by an usher.